

ALL UNIVERSITY MESSAGE

Dear UNM Community,

It is with both pride and sadness that I write to announce that Regina Carlow, Professor of Music Education and Choral Music and Interim Dean of the UNM College of Fine Arts, has accepted the position of Dean for the College of Fine Arts & Communication at Towson University. Over my six months as provost I have had the opportunity to work with Professor Carlow in her role as interim dean, and I can say that Towson University has secured a great leader. As interim dean and in her previous role as associate dean, Professor Carlow has been instrumental in creating a unified vision for several proposed capital projects for the College of Fine Arts, as well as encouraging new post-baccalaureate programs. These programs serve as models for higher education as students seek further education beyond their undergraduate degree to develop their talents and differentiate themselves. Dean Carlow has also provided tremendous opportunities for the New Mexico music education community through her work in developing children's choral programs across the state.

The search for a new dean for the College of Fine Arts is already well underway, and we hope to have a new dean announced before Dean Carlow departs UNM on May 31, 2020.

I've been privileged to work with Dean Carlow, and know that all of us at UNM wish her the best in this new role, even as we regret the loss of a fantastic colleague, teacher, and creator.

Sincerely,

James Paul Holloway
Provost & Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
